Summary

A new product formulation trial was carried out in the lab, covering a sample preparation and equipment check, a sensory and taste panel check, and a results and documentation review. All observations were captured using the Preserver app, with timestamp data recorded automatically alongside supporting photos and voice notes converted to text.

Samples were prepared and equipment calibrated without issue, the sensory panel completed the taste evaluation across all batches, and results were reviewed and documented ready for the formulation report.

How This Report Was Produced

This report was generated from a single Preserver export — no re-typing, no separate note-taking app, and no manual GPS lookups. During the visit, every photo, voice note and text entry was captured in one place, each automatically stamped with the time and exact location it was recorded.

At the end of the visit, the activity was locked directly in the app, sealing the record so nothing could be altered after the fact. The full activity — photos, transcripts, GPS log and metadata — was then exported in one step (JSON + Photos) and handed to an AI assistant, which produced the structured report above in a matter of minutes.

The result: a defensible, timestamped record of the trial, turned into a formulation-ready report the same afternoon it was captured.
